PROLOGUE

Connecticut U.S.A.

Wall Street doesn't seem so brutal after what you've been through. Better to face legions of feral commodities traders than blood-thirsty zombies. To get away from the noise and danger of the city you buy a nice mansion in a sleepy Connecticut town. Life is good and comfortable. The dreams of the terror mask are gone. The whole experience fades into a blurry memory...an occasional nightmare. You have a job. You have a future.

The Abyss

It doesn't understand time. It doesn't feel fear...it hangs for power. Before science, before fat, it was, Primal fury...waiting for a chance...waiting for a fool...waiting.

Mexico City

Energy, the temples flooded with energy. Then there was nothing. Dry dust and dreams of past glory. Then the sun. Strange men and a new land filled with energy. In their dreams they sense you. You are drawn to one...Rich. You don't question. It is your destiny. You top your powers for Rich. The carnage, the marvelous gore. Now back to the dust and dreams.

PROLOGUE CONT.

Once again, you feel the energy starting and you dream.
Dream to Rick..

"Rick, it's time to play again.."

"Time to fulfill our destiny..."

"Dream with our Rick... we'll have fun..."

"We'll have power..."

"We'll have total control"

HINTS

Splatterhouse 3 has multiple endings. The ending you see is determined by the time it took you to finish each level. If you finish a level with time remaining, you are on the best path. If you finish a level with no time left, you will not lose a life, but you will not be on the best path. There are several ways to help you finish a level with time remaining.

1. The best path through a level is not always the shortest path.
2. Each enemy has a unique weakness. Find the attack that is most devastating to a particular enemy and use it!
3. Find the weapons hidden on each floor.
4. Master the special moves and power moves.
5. Throwing enemies on other enemies will damage both of them.
6. Check the map often!
7. Shortcuts are indicated by yellow doors on the map.
8. One-way doors are indicated by white doors on the map.
9. Save your POW bar for tough fights only!
